An urgent and necessary book on the beauty of blackness

“Time heals. It really does.

Thus, through it all, you remain yourself.

Do not lose your softness. Do not let them steal your smile.

Don't be a hard rock when you are really a gem.”

Through the words of black cultural references such as Nelson Mandela, Nina Simone, Martin Luther King or Angela Davis, this message addressed not only to children underlines the beauty and the value of being yourself.
